We have practice pretty much every day except for the day following a game and during exam periods. Each practice session lasts about three hours. The club has around fifty members. In addition to the head coach there are eight coaches and two trainers, and we also have a support group made up of players' parents. During the playing season practice focuses on game strategy, and in the winter we concentrate on improving our overall fitness by running, weight training, and so on. Everyone on the team gets on really well, so even the toughest practices are fun. I go in there determined to show how good I can become. I love football and never feel like cutting practice no matter how grueling it gets.
